THE CENTRE COUNTY FARMERS

Are Now In Camp At Centre Hall-The Grangers Picnic In Full Sway.

SUNDAY A GRAND DAY.

The Large Camping Grounds That Covers An Area Of 30 Acres Is In Fine Condition--The Tenters Are Having a Royal Time.

REV. McILNAY PREACHED SERMON.

The Great Grangers Picnic was formally opened on Saturday when the country folks from all over the county moved into camp. The day was a very busy one, as they all wanted to have their little tent homes in perfect readness for their many friends that would come to see them on Sunday and during the coming week. So until late Saturday night could be seen the active little wives and daughters, busy fixing up, arranging the bedding, laying the rugs, or cooking the meals.

Early Sunday morning the sun broke through the heavy mists and shone in in all its warmth and radiance upon the campers and their guests. We arrived on the grounds very early in the morning and at that time many had already gathered for the day. From eight o'clock in the morning until late in the afternoon conveyances of all description could be seen wending their way to the Park Grounds, until nearly five thousand people had assembled The day was perfect and the country folks for miles around took advantage of the weather and attended the picnic.

Every tent is occupied and many more have made application for them but they cannot be supplied. The Midway is in full sway and most every desirable piece of ground has been leased. Many stands have already been erected and everyone is waiting for the coming week when they will undoubtedly do a large business. The Merry-Go-Round and other amusement places are up, ready for the big crowd.

Rev. G. W. McIlnay, pastor of the Centre Hall Methodist Episcopal church preached a forcible sermon in the Auditorium in the afternoon. The large building was crowded with good people who had gathered to hear Gods word spoken by one of His earnest servants. The singing by the large choir was very pretty and very much appreciated by everyone. The subject of Rev. McIlnay's address was taken from Psalms 116-12.

Possibly no Bible character had a greater experience than had the Psalmist. Out of his experience he explained "what shall I render to the Lord for all his benefits toward one."

He defined Render thus. "offer unto—bring back unto" benefits as boundless measure of mercy and love. Some natural benefits—Home environments Equal rights, Peace and Plenty. Spiritual blessings—Fellowship with God, Communion with the Spirit. Revelation of the Eternal Father and Salvation. The speaker said their are three classes of men. 1" Those who recognize God and do service 2" Those who recognize God in a nominal sense but under no service, and 3" Those who have apparently no appreciation of God's mercy. He then asked to which class do you belong. He then closed by saying "What should we not render to God?"

His discourse the whole way through was listened to with rapt attention by the large audience and no doubt but what the seed of God was sown in some hearts present.

TUESDAY.

Once again the old soldiers who marched shoulder to shoulder during those dark days in the early 60's met at the Grange Park on Tuesday to tell their experiences of the time when they were at the front fighting for Old Glory. To see them bunched together in little groups telling one another the funny things that happened when they were down there in the South having their fun with the "Johnnies." was a common sight over the park grounds.

After the Boys in Blue reached the grounds in the morning, the Chairman Ex-Governor James A. Beaver called the meeting to order and appointed the different committees. After which Hon. Leonard Rhone chairman of the Grange Encampment Association extended a cordial, heartfelt welcome to the Veterans Association of Centre County and their many friends. Chairman Rhones address of welcome was extended in such a way that every old soldier was made to feel perfectly at home. The response to the address of welcome was made by General Beaver. The meeting then adjourned until after dinner.

At 1:30 the meeting was called to order again by the chairman, a picture was taken of the club by a local photographer. The following gentlemen who had been appointed on the committee on Nominations of Officers for the ensuing year were Messrs John I. Curtin, James Kreps, Thomas S. Christ, William Isbler, John G. Heberling. The committee unanimously reported the re-election of the officers, eliminating the assistant Secretary deeming it not necessary to have one.

The committee on place of meeting for the ensuing year were the following gentlemen: W. H. Fry, John Noll, W. H. Close, John Stuart and John A. Daley. The committee unanimously chose Bellefonte as the next meeting place. If the weather is fair the reunion will be held at the Fair Grounds if not the meetings will be held in the Court house.

The camp fire was then lighted and many logs were placed on the burning heap, and the speeches made were greatly enjoyed by all present. In introducing the different speakers General Beaver always added a pleasant little anecdote of the times spent in camp. The most prominent speaker of the day was General B. Frank Fisher of Philadelphia. Others who made speeches were Captain G. F. McMichalls of Lock Haven; Captain Heinstenall of Illinois; Comrades Moyer, of Iowa; Rev. Gemmiel and John A. Daley. The latter repeated a piece of poetry that was certainly greatly enjoyed by everyone present.

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted by the association.

WHEREAS, Austin Curtin, a charter member of the Centre County Veteran Club, and one of the most constant attendants upon our reunions, is necessarily absent from this meeting, by reason of a

CRUEL MURDER AND SUICIDE

Deeds Committed at Sandy Ridge On Monday The Ending of a Love Affair.

PRETTY JENNIE NEVLING

Was Shot Down In Cold Blood By Her Jealous Lover, Who Afterwards Sent a Bullet Into His Own Heart.

JAMES CRONIN THE MURDERER.

Centre County is visited again by another horrible crime. This time the murder occurs at Sandy Ridge.

Pretty Jennie Nevlings of that place was instantly shot to death at 20 minutes of 12 by Jim Cronin an Englishman. Jennie was considered the prettiest girl in the village and had many lovers who longed to have her for a wife, she was only 19 years old and her parents thought she was too young to marry, but Cronin seemed so deeply infatuated with the girl that he could not give her up and when she positively refused to marry him, when he asked on Sunday night a jealous envious feeling took posession of his heart and this morning at 20 minutes of 12 he went to home, went up stairs and met the girl in a dark hallway and again asked her hand in marriage. and when she refused, he shot her through the heart killing her instantly.

The little home sits near the woods and the murderer cleared away as fast as possible. A sister-in-law of the murdered girl was down stairs and heard the shot and ran to her sisters assistance. But when she got to where she was she was lying dead. The alarm was then given and the most intense excitement reigns in that village and surrounding country. It is said if Cornin is found he will be torn to pieces.

JIM CRONIN ENDS HIS OWN LIFE.

After the storm always comes the calm, and so the feeling at Sandy Ridge where pretty Jennie Nevling was cruelly murdered on Monday at noon by John Cronin has subsided and now the young girls friends are mourning her death. Because she would not marry him, he decided she would never marry another man, and after he had pled with her the third time and received No for an answer he shot her through the heart killing instanlty, the girl he claimed he loved with his whole heart and soul.

When he saw that the crime had been finished, he laughed and dared her friends to come near, and when her dear old mother ran to help, the villain shot her, thinking he had killed the two he then fled. Coward and beast that he was, afraid to stand a square fight he ran to the woods back of the house where he had committed the crime. The mother was only shot through the arm and hurridly ran to the brick plant near the home and told the men employed there of the awful tragedy. The news spread like wild fire and in less than five minutes several hundred men with shot guns and clubs started for the mountain to capture the murderer. He had headed toward Tyrone where he expected to catch a freight and make good his escape, but the furious mob of pursuers were closing in on him and near the summit he turns on them and opens a fight. Several shots were fired at Cronin but none hit him, he returned the fire four times and when he saw that his case was helpless he turned the revolver that had sent the bullet into his sweethearts heart to his breast and fired. The bullet entered his heart and killed him instantly. His body was carried back to Sandy Ridge and prepared for burial. Mrs. Neveling's arm was dressed by a physician and if blood poison does not set in she will get along alright.

Cronin was only 24 years old, and they say he was a fine looking young fellow, he was rather heavy set, smooth face and wore a splendid suit of blue serge.

The girl was considered one of the prettiest in the village and had many admirers, which she had refused her hand in marrisge time and time again. Cronin determined in his heart that if he did not get her no one else ever would. So he killed her.

Thus ends another horrible tragedy in Centre county. If Cronin had not killed himself and had been captured no doubt but what he would have swung. That is if the mob of angry men had not of finished the job before the sheriff got him landed in jail. By him taking his own life the County has been saved a big pile of money.

Fifty Years in the Penitentiary

Meadville, Pa., September 13.—Fifty-five years in the western penitentiary and $1,000 fine is the sentence Thursday imposed by Judge Thomas on Henry Lehna the confessed assailant of Alma Whitehead, the 14-year-old daughter of Rev. R. B. Whitehead, of Turnersville. He got forty-five years on three assault charges and ten years for robbery. Lehna showed little emotion when arraigned for sentence, but he trembled when he heard the words which gave him the law's limit. To the court's query: "Have you anything to say why sentence should not be passed?" he replied: "I am guilty, and while I expect no sympathy from the people, I ask the leniency of the court." Judge Thomas replied: "I have no sympathy for such a man as you," and without further remarks sentence was pronounced. Within three minutes of the time he entered the court room the prisoner was taken back to jail. In the jail Lehna talked freely. He said the sentence was heavier than he expected, but "it didn't make much difference," and he was "willing to take his medicine."

He admitted he would rather take the Crawford county sentence than go back to the West Virginia mountains, or even to West Newton, Pa., and take his chances at the hands of citizens for similar crimes to which he confessed.

The Late Andrew Hugg.

We made a brief mention in last evening's issue of our paper of the death of Andrew Hugg, which occurred Tuesday afternoon at 2 30 o'clock at his home on Fourth street after an illness of nearly a month with typhoid fever.

The deceased was aged about 40 years, and was a son of Enoch Hugg of this this place. He was born near Milesburg, where he lived nearly all his life, coming th Philipsburg about a year and a half ago to take charge of the Farmers Hotel. He was married about 17 years ago to Miss Minnie Reese of Milesburg, to whom 6 children were born, five of whom survive, together with the heart-broken wife. His parents also survive with three sisters and two brothers, viz. Mrs. Annie Witherite, Boggs township this county; Mrs. M. H. Davidson this city; Mrs. Mary Smith Milesburg; Harris of this city, and Toner of Milesburg. Two of the children are still confined to bed with the same dreaded disease that caused the death of the father. The deceased was a quiet, but very pleasant gentleman and had many friends who will be sorry to learn of his death.

A private service will be held at the home this evening and the body taken tomorrow to Milesburg for burial, interment to take place at 1.30, with public services at the old Advent church near the latter place.—Philipsburg Journal.

Col. E. R. Chambers for District Attorney.

Colonel E. R. Chambers, in his letter accepting the nomination for District Attorney, said, "The farmer who works from day light to late evening at hard labor in order to meet his living expenses, should not be forced to pay extra taxes for mistakes made in our criminal courts. Larency, burgulary and murder have run riot in our county of late, and if I am elected I pledge myself to brake this up and stop it without unnecessary expense to the tax-payer.'

He is acknowledged to be the criminal lawyer in this county. Will you vote for him?

COUNCIL ACCEPTS PRUNER BEQUEST

Orphanage Ordinance Passed by Council

LONG FIGHT ENDED

Six Voted for the Orphanage, One Against it and two Were Absent—Now up to the Burgess Curtin

OTHER BUSINESS BEFORE COUNCIL

The regular semi-monthly session of the Borough Council was held on Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock with President Keller in the chair and the following members present: Kirk, Shuey, Beezer, Hamilton, Derstine and Wagner.

The street Committee reported cleaning streets and alleys and making repairs.

Rev. J. B. Stein and Rev. Ambrose Schmidt, a committee from the ministerium, appeared before council in regard to boys smoking cigarettes on our streets. It is against the law and stop this evil. They also complained of the profanity of our policemen. In regard to boys under sixteen smoking cigarette, the point is to get at the people who furnish them with the cigaretts.

The boilers of the water works have been inspected and found in good condition.

Pavement in front of V. J. Bauer store was complained of and found in a bad condition.

The complaints of the committee from the ministerium were referred to the Fire and Police committee with power to act.

Dr. Kirk moved, seconded by Mr. Beezer that the Pruner ordinance be passed over Burgess Curtin's veto. President Keller ruled that this was out of order.

Dr. Kirk then offered an ordinance accepting the orphanage and appointing a Board of Managers designating their terms etc. and moved his adoption.

President Keller said that there was not a full council present and it should not be voted upon. Dr. Kirk moved that the ordinance be adopted and Mr. Wagner seconded the motion. President Keller ruled that the resolution was out of order as the original ordinance accepting the bequest had been rescinded by council and a resolution rescinding the resolution having been vetoed by the Burgess and not passed over his veto the present ordinance offered was out of order.

Dr. Kirk appealed from the decision of the chair, claiming that the recinding resolution was never a law and it was not necessary to repeal it and asked council to sustain him.

President Keller asked whether council sustained the decision of the chair. The ayes and nays were called on the ruling of the chair the vote stood Nay—Beezer, Hamilton, Derstine, Kirk, Wagner Shuey. The vote was 6 to 0 against the decision of the chair.

The question of adopting the Kirk ordinance accepting the Pruner Orphanage was then taken up. The vote stood. For Orphananage—Derstine, Hamilton, Beezer, Wagner, Shuey and Kirk. Against Orphanage—Keller. The ordinance was therefore declared adopted.

It now remains for the Burgess to act upon. If he signs it, the ordinance becomes effective at once. If he vetoes it, the council will undoubtedly pass it over his veto, and thus the long fight is probably ended. and we will have the opportunity of trying whether the project will be a success or not.

ENTERED INTO REST.

Mrs. W. Harrison Walker Passed Away on Sunday Evening.

Caroline Estelle, daughter of Alvaba and Clara A. Hoffman was born in Pleasantville, Venango County, Pa., June 13 1875. Except for a short period when the family lived in Lockport her earlier life was spent in the town of her birth. She graduated from the Pleasantville High School with honors and later from the Lock Haven Normal School, maintaining a high standard of scholaship throughout. After completing her scholastic work she took a thorough musical course in Titusville.

On Sept. 25th, 1901, she was married to W. Harrison Walker and came at once to Bellefonte where she has since resided.

During the past few months she has been in somewhat delicate health, but nothing serious was anticipated, until about ten days ago, when an acute attack of intestinal indigestion aroused a latent heart trouble Several physicians and nurses gave continuous attention to her case, and everything that human powers could devise was done for her relief; but she gradually gave way to the ravages of disease, and as the Sabbath day drew to it close, she passed quietly out from the realm of things earthly into the eternal glories of the Sabbath of God. The immediate cause of death is given as embolic cerebral apoplexy, superinduced by organic disease of the heart.

When scarcely 13 years of age she joined the Presbyterian church in Pleasantville, at once becoming enthusiastic and proficient in the work of the church. Later she transferred her membership to the Bellefonte church of which she remained a faithful and loyal member until her death.

Religion to Mrs. Walker was not a vague and shadowy form or theory, but as the very breath of her life, an intense, practical and happy reality. She lived close to her Savior, never allowing anything to interfere with the time set apart to prayer and fellowship with Him.

As a result of His constant presence in her heart, she possessed a cheerfulness of nature, and sweetness of disposition, which won all hearts and made everybody her friend. To know her well was to love her, while those who met her but casually felt instinctively the presence of all that is truest and best in womanhood. Wherever she touched life, in the home, the community, or church, she shed abroad an influence of gentleness, purity and beauty which made life more worth the living. Her early death has cast a spell of sadness over the whole community, and the universal expression is one of deep and personal loss.

"There is no death; the stars go down
To rise upon some other shore,
And bright in heaven's jeweled crown,
They shine forever more."

Death of Mrs. Williams.

Mrs. Minnie Leona Williams wife of Sylvester Williams, of Julian, Pa. was found dead in her home on Tuesday evening, Sept. 10. She had been gathering elderberries during the forenoon and attending her household duties in the afternoon. One of her neighbors passed the house at three o'clock and conversed with her and at that time she was as lively as ever and apparently in the best of health, at 6 o'clock her dead body was found lying upon the floor of her setting room by a neighbor boy who usually slept there during the absence of her husband. Coroner Fisher accompanied by Dr. W. W. Irwin of Unionville investigated the case and found she died from natural causes, evidently superinduced by the severe electrical storm which passed over that section that evening. The deceased leaves three small children, ages ranging from 5 months to 5 years. She was 22 years of age and was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Wills.

Going to Panama.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Lonsbury are making arrangements to go to Panama. Mr. Lonsbury has been offered an excellent position with a very high salary. They expect to leave for the tropics in a couple of weeks. The best wishes of their many friends in Bellefonte go with them. Mr. Lonsbury is one of the best engineers and his work in that country will be along that line.

Miss Barbara Jane Goheen daughter of the late John J. Goheen died at her home at Rock Spring on Sunday morning She has been an invalid for years. Miss Goheen was about 50 years of age. She was buried at Grayville at 2 p. m. on Tuesday.

REPUBLICAN FLAG UP

State Headquarters Opened and Campaign Is Under Way.

CLUB MEN TO TAKE LEAD

An Aggressive Canvass to Be Inaugurated With the Gathering of the Leaguers at Their Convention in Harrisburg.

[Special Correspondence.]

Harrisburg, Sept. 10.

While the Republican state committee headquarters were opened in Philadelphia this week, the campaign for the election of the Republican nominee for state treasurer, John O. Sheatz, it is believed, will not be inaugurated until the meeting of the state convention of the Republican League of Clubs, which will be held in this city on Tuesday and Wednesday, September 24th and 25th, respectively.

It is predicted that there will be a large attendance at this convention, and there is promise of some brilliant oratory from gifted sons of Pennsylvania, who will tell of the splendid character of their standard bearer in the state campaign, and of the enthusiasm with which his nomination has been received by his fellow citizen throughout the commonwealth.

Reports that come here from the various counties of the state all confirm the claims of Colonel Wesley R. Andrews, chairman of the Republican state committee, that the party organization was never more harmonious, nor never more loyal to a ticket than it is today.

Colonel Andrews, while he has delayed the opening of the state headquarters until this week, has been in correspondence with the chairmen of the Republican county committees and others active in the organization all summer, and there is undoubted evidence that much preliminary work has been done in the way of qualifying the voters in the matter of the payment of taxes and in interesting those who are obliged to be personally registered under the recently enacted legislation in this very important feature of the campaign.

Must Qualify Voters.

While voters in first and second class cities still have an opportunity to be personally registered on Tuesday, September 17th, and Saturday, October 5th, the residents of third-class cities have also two days more for registration—Tuesday, September 17th, and Saturday, October 19th.

Under the election laws of Pennsylvania, every citizen, to be qualified to vote at next November's election, must have paid a state or county tax within two years.

The last day upon which taxes can be paid to qualify voters for the next election will be Saturday, October 5th.

Citizens in Pennsylvania living outside of cities are not required to be personally registered.

It is expected that there will be thousands of visiting Republicans not connected with the Club League come to this city during the days of the convention gathering to meet Mr. Sheatz and the others of prominence in the Republican party who will be in attendance upon the convention.

Candidate Sheatz has evidently made a fine impression wherever he has been, for there is a great demand to have him to address meetings in different counties, and there is going to be a real old-fashioned spirit in the campaign when it gets well under way.

Many Dauphin county Republicans were present at the recent meeting at the Grangers picnic at Williams Grove, when Mr. Sheatz was the principal orator, and they were delighted with the impression he made upon the voters and the manifest sincerity of his pledges to conduct the office of state treasurer as he would his own business, and to be upon the alert to check extravagance or any illegal raids upon the money of the people.

Sheatz's Ideal State Treasurer.

When asked to state the "kind of state treasurer Pennsylvania should have," John Oscar Sheatz wrote the following:

"He must realize that as treasurer of Pennsylvania he is merely acting as trustee of your money and is not the owner of it.

"He must stand ready to pay every just obligation of the commonwealth, and absolutely refuse to pay any sum when the expenditures are not clearly defined by existing laws, or when flagrant extravagance exists. In the latter case the sooner the press and public are made aware of the fact the better for our commonwealth.

"He must be a man who will ont detake orders from a political boss, or one that cannot be persuaded by promises of future political preferment.

"He must be a man who will not deposit your money in banks, where the influence of those bankers and stockholders, in return for this deposit, is to be exerted for political parties or factions.

"He must make careful business principles prevail throughout the department and have every employe holding his position because of capability and not political pull.

"The foregoing are my thoughts on the question of state treasurership, and if the people of Pennsylvania, after carefully looking up my record as a member of the state legislature during the sessions of 1903-05-06-07 (the only office I have held) find it as being consistent with my views here expressed, then I hope they will vote for me at the coming November election."

NERVE OF THE HAUGHTY DON

Striking Description of the Daring and Courage Displayed by the Old General Who Would Not Permit an Englishman to Outdo Him.

The realistic Spanish novelist, Valdes, in one of his most popular stories ("Sister San Suplice," translated by Nathan Haskell Dole) gives a description of a retired Spanish general's afternoon out which will illuminate many chivalric incidents in Spanish life and aptly illustrates the reckless daring and courage of which the average haughty don is liberally possessed. The scene is a sort of picnic grounds in the outskirts of Seville:

"Meantime the animation had been on the increase among the ruffians. The period of unmannerly action had come. One of them climbed upon a table to make a speech, and then the others, by way of applause, threw sherry and manzanilla in his face. Another was trying to lift with his teeth a companion whom drunkenness had stretched out on the floor. He did not succeed. He merely tore his sack coat. Still others were committing absurd and extravagant actions, making a great noise and uproar.

"The count remained grave and silent, drinking one glass of sherry after another. But his eyes were no longer, as usual, incomprehensible and unfathomable, like those of a man tired of life. Though he did not speak or move about he seemed a different man.

"The Englishman had taken off his jacket and waistcoat and, rolling up his shirt sleeves, was exhibiting his biceps, which were really powerful, and trying to break empty bottles on his arm. Once blood had come, but he went on breaking the bottles without paying any attention to it. Then he asked the waiter to bring a bottle of rum and a large glass. He filled this to the brim with the liquor, and then slowly, without moving a muscle or even winking, he drained it to the bottom. Then he sat down at the table opposite the count and said solemnly:

"'You can't do that.'

"A flash of fury gleamed through the harebrained nobleman's eyes, but he succeeded in restraining himself, and, turning the rest of the bottle into the glass, he calmly ordered the waiter to bring him some pepper. He threw in a pinch of it, then threw into it his cigar ashes heaped up before him and, without saying a word, with the same scornful, contemptuous smile, drained the glass and, not content with that, bit it in pieces. We saw his lips spotted with blood. The company received with oles and shouts of triumph this proof of an unconquerable stomach, in which it seemed as though the national honor were concerned.

"Our neighbors in the other booths must have reached the same happy grade of temperature, for nothing was heard but extravagant shouts, the crashing of glasses, coarse laughter and swearing.

"The count was not yet satisfied with his victory over the Englishman. While he was swallowing with apparent calmness the glasses of liquor which were offered to him he did not cease to devour him with his eyes, carried away by a dull madness, which soon broke out. His eyes, which were the only part of his impassive face that moved, gleamed more and more ferociously, like those of a madman when a straitjacket has been put on him. The Englishman continued to boast of his strength. He was now thoroughly intoxicated and talking impudently enough to the others, who were not so drunk.

"'So you are very valiant, are you?' asked the count, still smiling disdainfully.

"'More than you,' retorted the Englishman.

"Don Jenaro started to spring at him, but the others restrained him. Soon calming himself, he said:

"'If you are so brave, why not put your hand on the table?'

"'What for?'

"'To pin it down with mine.'

"The Englishman without an instant's hesitation stretched out his huge, brawny hand. The count took out of his pocket a damaskeened dagger and laid his delicate, gentlemanly hand on the Englishman's, and without hesitation and with a ferocious grip he raised the point with the other and drove it through both into the table.

"The women uttered a cry of terror. All of us men ran to their assistance. A few left the place in search of help. In an instant our booth was filled with blood. From the wounds great drops of blood streamed, staining the handkerchiefs which we applied to them.

"A doctor who happened to be among the bystanders dressed the wounds provisionally with the few means at his disposal. The count smiled while they were dressing his hand. The Englishman was as sick as a horse, and soon the count was the same, and both were taken to such rooms as the establishment had to offer and went to bed. Every one left, commenting on the barbarism of the deed."

THOMAS LIPTON TO TRY FOR CUP

Will Make The Attempt to Win Trophy.

CHALLENGE WAS SENT

The Royal Irish Yatch Club Has Mailed Document--Change of Club May Bring Luck.

AMERICANS WILL ALSO GET BUSY.

London, September 13th.—Sir Thomas Lipton will make another attempt in 1908 to regain the America's cup for Great Britain.

The announcement was made Friday afternoon by Sir Thomas, in London, and by the Secretary of the Royal Irish Yacht Club in Dublin.

The challenge which goes to the New York Yacht Club is in the name the Royal Irish Yacht Club, was mailed from Dublin today. It may be taken to New York by the American line steamer St. Paul which leaves Southampton tomorrow.

The details of the challenge were arranged when Sir Thomas visited Dublin recently in the course of a yachting cruise around the British Isles aboard the Erin. He told a friend months ago that he intended to challenge, but having until the end of September to take action, he deferred challenging until the eleventh hour not being desirous of giving the American yachtsmen more time than was necessay to make preparations for defending the cup, they have, it being claimed, a great advantage in it being necessary for the challenging yacht to cross the Atlantic.

The Yoyal Irish Yacht Club was organized in 1731, and is located at Kinzstown, near Dublin. Its races are sailed on the Irish sea over courses free from headlands.

It is not known why Sir Thomas desired to challenge through the Irish Yatch Club, instead of the Royal Ulster Yatcht Club, which issued the previous challenges in his behalf, unless it is that he thinks a change of luck may follow a change of clubs.

The Longest Day.

It is quite important, when speaking of the longest day in the year, to say what part of the world you are talking about. The latitude of a place changes the length of the day to a remarkable extent.

At Stockholm Sweden, it is eighteen and one half hours in length.

At Spitzbergen the longest day is three and one half months.

At London, England, and Bremen Prussia, the longest day has sixteen and one half hours.

At Hamburg in Germany, and Dantzig, in Prussia the longest day has seventeen hours.

At Wardoe, Norway, the longest day lasts from May 21 to July 22 without interruption.

Verdict for Dr. Pierce

AGAINST THE

Ladies' Home Journal.

Sending truth after a lie. It is an old maxim that "a lie will travel seven leagues while truth is getting its boots on," and no doubt hundreds of thousands of good people read the unwarranted and malicious attack upon Dr. R. V. Pierce and his "Favorite Prescription" published in the May (1904) number of the Ladies' Home Journal, with its great black display headings, who never saw the humble, groveling retraction, with its inconspicuous heading, published two months later. It was boldly charged in the slanderous and libelous article that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for the cure of woman's weaknesses and ailments, contained alcohol and other harmful ingredients. Dr. Pierce promptly brought suit against the publishers of the Ladies' Home Journal, for $200,000.00 damages.

Dr. Pierce alleged that Mr. Bok, the editor, maliciously published the article containing such false and defamatory matter with the intent of injuring his business; furthermore, that no alcohol, or other injurious, or habit-forming, drugs are, or ever were, contained in his "Favorite Prescription"; that said medicine is made from native medicinal roots and contains no harmful ingredients whatever, and that Mr. Bok's malicious statements were wholly and absolutely false.

In the retraction printed by said Journal they were forced to acknowledge that they had obtained analyses of "Favorite Prescription," from eminent chemists, all of whom certified that it did not contain alcohol or any of the alleged harmful drugs.

These facts were also proven in the trial of the action in the Supreme Court. But the business of Dr. Pierce was greatly injured by the publication of the libelous article with its great display headings, while hundreds of thousands who read the wickedly defamatory article never saw the humble groveling retraction, set in small type and made as inconspicuous as possible. The matter was, however brought before a jury in the Supreme Court of New York State which promptly rendered a verdict in the Doctor's favor. Thus his traducers came to grief and their base slanders were refuted.

Old Farmer Jones Says.

I just came to town this morning Burt to tell you about Sarah keeping Boarders You know I told you Sarah was bound to keep some and John Sourbeck Jr. was in N. Y. not long ago and told some young snips that we kept summer boarders So they writ Sarah and she agreed to take them against my will and now they went away and didn't pay her so I just took a trip down to N. Y. to look up their reputation but they did not have any and I played detective and was at a corn roast Just in the Rhubarbs of the city and one of the fellows who was so smart give him self away he was entertaining the crowd and he began like this; did you ever go out into the country for your health? out on a farm and get home sick? I got home so sick the last time that I swore that I would never go again. the doctor said I had melancholy but did not say what kind of melon? I was out in the country where the wood chuck chucketh and the chipmonk chippeth where the sting Bee stingeth and the flea bite itcheth. I was out there with the Jones family they had other boarders besides me they had Mr. and Mrs. Feeble who took one room for two weeks and when the r son Joined them they took another room for another week the land lady had some letters from three gentleman in business togather named Haps Simmons and Spire I think they were looking for a place to cool off for the first one was from Spire signed Simmons and Spire per spire and the next letter was from Simmons & Spire and signed Simmons & Spire per Simmons and the next letter was from Haps & Spire signed Haps & Spire per Haps so between perspire persimmons and perhaps she didnt know who to expect: she didn't know whether to look for a cold wave or the milk bill when I arrived at the station there was a fellow standing there from "Red Roost" and he asked me if the "ticket shop" was open yet then I told him I was a stranger and was looking for Farmer Jones he said over there he is. he met me with a Buck board wagon and a horse full of hay and just to make the horse look good he had a pair of loose pajamas pulled over his hind legs and a lace curtin spread over his back to keep the flies off. were you ever on a buck Board there is no box on the wagon Just a long board running from one end to the other about the width of a circus seat for you to sit on if you can? whenever we struck a rut in the road I bounced up into the air about ten feet and spread out like a pair of scissors. I looked like a pair a flying wish bone. Jones says does it meet your expectation? I says I should say it does and if it meets it much more my back bone will go out through the top of my head Just then we struck a rut and the board broke and flew against the horse in the pajamas and the horse run off and when I arrived at the house they gave me what they called the attic chamber but to say it quick the garret it is that room where the roof starts on the floor at each side and meets in the centre over head.

If I wanted to get up in the middle of the night I had to get up in the middle of the room once I missed the middle of the room and missed my breakfast the next morning, I didn't come to till dinner time.

One day the old man Jones says how's your room I says "tip top" in less than a week my head was covered with celling wax the only window in the room was along under the eaves a little window about a foot wide and a yard long you had to stand on your head to look out I soon discovered the best way was to back up and look through my anklee; I usto watch the sun rise up side down. I could hardly tell whether it was going up or down one day the old man had finished building a porch at the back of the house he saw me looking out the window. he says, you ought to come here and see my back stoop. I says, you ought to come up and see mine. the next day I had room-atic pain or attic room pain I did not know which when I first took the room the only thing in it was a string of dried apples and a bunch of tansy Mrs. Jones says you can have this room for a dollar and we'll throw in a bed and they threw in a bed when I wasn't looking. a seat bed, narrow strips of board you know just near enough togather if your thick enough? I fell through and the bed fell on me, then Mrs. Jones wanted to know if I had a bed spread over me. Hot well I guess it was the only thing on that farm was a picture in the parlor of Washington crossing the Deleware we used to watch Geo. juggle the Ice. the nights was so hot that they had to set up and fan the milk to keep it cool till morning? we had to put the butter on our bread with a paint brush we were so short of tea spoons we used a young onion to stir our coffee with I got sick and had to go to bed and ordered my meals brought to my room, I asked Jones for coffee and of course he served me with the black coffee? a few minuits later Mrs. Jones was anxious to know if I had been waited on and yelled up the stairs "did your coffee come up yet" I says I just got it down give it a chance will you. I was glad to leave the farm I tell you. Mrs. Jones gave me a lunch on the train she put it in an old bird cage so I could see what I would have to eat. I boarded the cars and asked the waiter in the dining car where I could wash myself he says "all over" for all I care then stop right there I Mr. Jones and took off my mask and had Hastings Gates along with me to proove what this dude said was not true he left without paying his summer board and now Sarah says she is cured of having any more boarders from New York. I told her so but say I'll have to make that train for Milesburg good-bye.

Causes the Train to be Late.

At Sunbury when the local freight to Bellefonte is being made up the hands at the freight transfer dump the freight in the cars in any old way, so up along the line the local brakeman have to dig away down under freight to get what is wanted. Now for instance if a lot of stuff is to be put off at Coburn or Spring Mills it is found at the bottom, under what comes to Centre Hall, and Bellefonte. This could be greatly remedied at the starting point.

If the freight for each town along the line was placed in the cars in rotation the men would know exactly where to find it. And then it is not only a whole lot of extra work for the brakeman, but it is a great expense to the company, as in a months time the extra time these men spend in getting this work done means a whole lot of dollars and cents. And now to come right home, take for instance Friday evening, the freight did not reach Bellefonte or the cars get placed at the station until after nine o'clock. A number of our merchants had perishable fruit on the train and standing all night in one of those hot cars means that a lot of stuff was spoiled. So it is a matter of dollars and cents to our merchants. Why, just because the work is not done properly at Sunbury all of these unfortunate things happen on account of a lot of ignoramuses at the transfer. It would be just as easy to do it right and save all this extra work and money, as it is being done now.

In Your Own Home.

If a boy should speak to his friend's mother as he does to his mother, or if he should be as surly and unkind to his friend's sister as he is to his own sister, we do not think he would be asked to visit that friend's house more than once. It is ashame for anybody to behave better away from home than he does at home. Let the boys know that bad mannere at home will soon be known to all the neighbors and friends.

Getting Ready for the Races.

On Friday afternoon we visited the Fair Grounds and found everything in splendid shape for the reception of the large crowd of people who will undoubtedly attend, The Merry-go-around man is there already and has everything in good shape, he has been at Hecla Park all summer so he didn't have a long distance to move.

The stables, stalls and pens have all been repaired and gone over, and are in splendid condition for the race horses and all the other animals that will be on exhibition during Fair week.

Of course the race track is very heavy just now on account of the rain storms we have had lately. Some of the boys were trying out their horses during the afternoon and from the showing they made we feel sure some of the Bellefonte horses will capture a good bit of the prize money.

We noticed Jim Chambers with his new horse "Donation" spinning around in 2.24½, no one knows what he can do when the place is in good condition but we wouldn't be surprised to hear of him doing some wonderful stunts.

Other horses out were "Joe" George Beezer's new racer. He is going to open the eyes of every one when he gets started once, and you are safe in backing him up with the long green. "Ash" Dr. Jones' speeder and "Major McKinley" Delaun Stewart's pretty little money winner. They all made a good showing and the Bellefonte fans need not be afraid to go go some on them. "Rabbie" Henry Lowery's horse and "Joe" Frank Bartley's new racer both were there with the goods and although not in the same class with the other four, they don't intend to take the dust from any that are in the same class. From now until after the fair those horses and other ones that will be coming in every day will be at the Fair Grounds and kept in good trim for the races that will come off October 8, 9, 10, and 11.

Boston, Sept. 14—A protest against keeping Jessie Pomeroy, the murderer, in solitary confinement at the Charlestown state prison was filed with Governor Guild by Fred H. Gile, secretary of the American Society for the Promotion of Criminal Anthropology.

The petition recites that Pomeroy has served a sentence in solitary confinement for 33 years. He has been in jail since he was 14 years old and has never been allowed out of his cell to stroll with other prisoners, work with them at the benches, nor even to attend divine services. He has never seen an electric car, talked through a telephone or ridden in an elevator.

A Patroness of Genius

By HOWARD FIELDING

Copyright, 1905, by Charles W. Hooke

MRS. CULVER is a widow, young and fair and very rich. Her ways have been ways of pleasantness throughout the whole span of her years, and she is today the happiest creature that exists under the blue arch of heaven. Even a trifling malady of the heart with which she is afflicted may be counted as a blessing, not only to herself, but to her physician and to me. It spices her life with a delightful though wholly imaginary uncertainty. She is capable of a delicious melancholy and reads the works of the gentler philosophers with a profit and joy which might otherwise be denied to her. And besides she takes a lively pleasure in changing her will about once in three months, with the help of my legal advice. Upon such occasions the enumeration of her various properties gives her a childish gratification wholly unmercenary, a liberal fee is mine, and when I meet her doctor we never fail to shake hands upon the excellent state of Mrs. Culver's health and upon the cheering prospect that her generosity may still be an amelioration of our lives in this hard world years hence when we are old.

Mrs. Culver is a discoverer of genius, chiefly in the fields of music and poetry, and has helped many worthy young persons, with only a moderate sprinkling of mere schemers and spongers. Every new object of her favor inspires her with a fresh desire to attack the impossible problem of establishing a permanent charity for the needy children of Apollo, and (only upon paper, of course) I have squandered millions for her in this way. A natural delicacy restrains her from immediate benefactions of any great magnitude, and so she adds a codicil to her voluminous will and nearly always revises her general scheme of charity at the same time.

Upon a certain day I had an appointment to call upon Mrs. Culver at 3 in the afternoon, and I looked forward to the usual agreeable interview.

When I entered her house I was aware of music, very good music, as I am compelled to admit. Some one was playing upon the piano in the smaller drawing room upon my right. I guessed at once that the performer must be a young Dane named Nils Kronold, whose genius had recently been brought to Mrs. Culver's attention.

The butler informed Mrs. Culver of my presence, and she came to the reception room, where we exchanged a few words. I learned that she had encountered Mr. Kronold in one of the big stores and had brought him home in her carriage. If I cared to hear him play she would take me into the drawing room, but if time pressed with me she would dismiss him and give her attention to business.

Meanwhile the talented Dane continued to discourse most excellent music, and although my conversation with Mrs. Culver occupied more minutes than the brief summary of it might seem to indicate, Mr. Kronold did not cease to play. The sound was always in my ears, although not constantly attended, yet I am sure that if it had been interrupted beyond the natural small pauses of the musical score I should instantly have been aware of the fact and should not have failed to remember it afterward.

I have said, however, that I did not give a steady hearing to the sweet strains that were wafted across to us. The reason was twofold—first, I preferred the voice of my hostess to any other music, and, second, I had observed something which, though it had no especial significance at the moment, excited my curiosity and tended to deflect my attention. Behind Mrs. Culver there was a mirror, and it gave me a view of the part of the hall and of the entrance of the room where Mr. Kronold was. A heavy curtain was hung across that door. I saw the butler—a lean, dark, anxious man, whose name is Derby—draw the curtain aside and enter. I saw him presently emerge, and it seemed to me that his demeanor was not ordinary. It was furtive, tense and nervously indecisive.

MR. KRONOLD SEEMED OBLIVIOUS OF OUR COMING.

There was a chair in a corner of the hall, and he sat down in it and got up again in an unnatural way, as if his action had been part of a mild nightmare. I saw his right hand hovering around the breast pocket of his coat, and I knew that that pocket held unusual contents. Finally he glanced toward the door of the reception room, caught a glimpse, I suppose, of my observing eyes in the mirror, and immediately his distress increased.

"By all means," said I in response to a renewed suggestion by my hostess, "I should be very much pleased to meet Mr. Kronold."

Upon this we crossed to the drawing room, the butler holding the curtain for our convenience and entering after us in response to a sign from his mistress, who doubtless required some small service of him, though what it was she could not remember, for the excitement of the next few minutes obliterated the matter from her mind.

Mr. Kronold seemed oblivious of our coming. His back was toward us; his eyes were intent upon the score, for it appeared that he was playing something new to his repertory, a purchase of that afternoon. This circumstance may account for the fact that he was giving his third rendition of it when we entered. I remembered having heard those chords while the butler was admitting me to the house and again while Mrs. Culver and I were talking in the reception room.

I think that Mrs. Culver was about to make a gesture to me, indicating that we should wait in silence for the conclusion of the piece, but a sudden shock of surprise arrested her. Following the direction of her glance, I saw a plain table, which stood in the center of the room, seemingly an addition to the ordinary furniture, and now littered with a great number of unframed engravings, upon the midst of which there lay a lady's hand bag. The mouth of the bag was open and gaped at us pathetically like a dying fish.

"Where is my money?" said Mrs. Culver in a strained and whispering tone, and I could have fancied that she addressed the question to the empty bag and that the inanimate creature's open mouth replied in the popular phrase of the day, "You can search me."

The gifted Kronold wheeled about upon the piano stool and sprang to his feet.

"Why, Mrs. Culver," he cried; "surely it's not possible"—

I interrupted him by suddenly addressing Derby, the butler, who was about to withdraw from the scene.

"Don't go," said I, and then to Mrs. Culver: "Pardon me. I think it is important that Derby should remain. I saw him enter this room and leave it, and since then he has not been out of my sight. So if anything is missing he has a perfect opportunity to prove his innocence immediately. In justice to him I could not see him lose this chance by absenting himself at this juncture."

Derby's distress was extreme and ludicrously obvious. In my mind there was no doubt at all that the missing money was in the man's breast pocket.

"What was the sum?" I asked Mrs. Culver. "And in what form was it?"

"Not quite $10,000," she replied. "There were nine $1,000 bills," and she gave me the whimsical, womanly reasons which had led her to close her account with a certain bank and take the sum in cash.

"And you carried so much money in that bag?" said I. "It was a risk."

"Ah, but this is not an ordinary bag," said she, and, taking it from the table, she closed it and gave it to me. "Let me see you open it."

I was unable to do so, for there was a secret spring most ingeniously devised.

"This is the way," said she, taking it from me, and in a moment she had replaced it upon the table open.

"Are you sure the money was there when you left this room?" I asked.

"Positive," she answered. "And, besides, the bag was closed. Somebody must have opened it."

"Yes," said Kronold. "I distinctly remember that it lay upon the table, closed, when I sat down to the piano a few moments ago."

"I don't remember where I put it," said Mrs. Culver, "but," she added, with decision, "I know that it was shut."

"It lay like this," said Kronold, and he put the bag upon a corner of the table, not in the middle, as it had lain when my attention was first drawn to it. "And now," he continued, "there have been only two persons in this room, myself and this servant. In this matter I will claim no advantage over him. His honor may be as precious to him as mine is to me. So this is what must be done." And he proceeded to empty his pockets.

"But you were at the piano all the time," protested Mrs. Culver. "Aside from the absurdity of the idea that you would do such a thing, you really couldn't, you know."

She turned to me for confirmation, and I had no choice but to support the argument. It was a perfect certainty that Kronold had played continuously for some time preceding Mrs. Culver's leaving the room. Nevertheless I yielded to the musician's plea and helped him search himself. He did not have the money.

Then Derby stepped forward, his hand in his breast pocket, and, with most moving evidences of shame and contrition, he produced a letter addressed to Mrs. Culver and bearing the return stamp of a well known employment agency. He had given her the letter when she came in with Kronold and had seen her put it upon the table in the drawing room. Some days before he had incurred the lady's displeasure, and he feared this communication dealt with the question of his successor, so he had so far debased himself at the behest of natural curiosity as to go in and get the letter, intending to read it in the hall and return it to its place before Mrs. Culver should miss it.

"But I didn't take the money," he declared, with tears in his eyes.

And, if he had taken it, what in the name of all mystery had he done with it? He could not have hidden it in the hall, because my eyes were on him, and he had been nowhere else except in the drawing room itself, and there not more than one minute, as I could testify. Moreover, if Mrs. Culver had left the ba closed, how could Derby have known that the money was in it?

Kronold knew, for Mrs. Culver had told him, but the lady had opened the bag after entering the room and had seen the money in it. Therefore if

"WHERE IS KRONOLD?" I DEMANDED.

Kronold had taken it it must still be in the room. But the table was at least fifteen feet distant from the piano, and my own ears bore witness that Kronold had played all the time that he was alone.

Mrs. Culver evidently believed that Derby had hidden the money in the room, and she began a search. Derby meanwhile was leaning against the wall, a figure of wood. Kronold took me aside. He had the bag in his hands, and he covertly showed me a small moist stain upon it.

"That looks to me like blood," said he. "Do you observe that Derby has a scratch across two of his fingers?"

"Yes," I answered, "but it doesn't seem to be bleeding."

"I saw him wiping it with his handkerchief," said he. "Now, if this stain is blood that shows that the fellow is lying, for he said that he did not touch the bag. It's only a step to the Children's hospital, and one of the doctors over there could tell me in a jiffy whether it's blood or not. Then we'd have Derby in a noose."

At this moment Mrs. Culver in her search approached the piano, and I saw a spasm of uncontrollable nervous terror sweep over Kronold's face. A great illumination dawned upon my mind—the money was in the piano! Mrs. Culver had not remembered just where she had put down the bag. She must have put it on the piano and not on the table. Kronold had opened it with one hand, while pounding the keys with the other, had taken out the money and then had cleverly tossed the bag to the table.

I may as well say at once that my deductions—except as to the hiding place of the money—were absolutely accurate. That is precisely the way in which the robbery was committed. Subsequent investigations proved Kronold to be a beast of prey, with a long record on the other side of the Atlantic. He was, besides, as clever as a conjurer and one to whom the trick of the bag's lock was simple as A B C.

At that moment I had an inspiration to save Mrs. Culver a shock. A painful scene was inevitable, but it would better involve no one except the thief and myself.

"Mr. Kronold has made a brilliant suggestion," said I, addressing the lady. "It will necessitate our going out together for a few minutes. May I ask you to remain in this room, keep Derby here and admit no one else?"

Mrs. Culver assented without question, and Kronold and I left the room. The musician seemed glad of my company, and as I stepped out from Mrs. Culver's portal into the glare of the western sun my mind was busy with the riddle of the man's demeanor. The next instant I was alone. The heavy door was shut, and Kronold was upon the other side of it.

It may have been ten seconds before I had the wit to use my knuckles and the bell. Derby admitted me, wondering.

"Where is Kronold?" I demanded.

The butler stared and stammered.

"I—I supposed he went out with you, sir."

This, however, was a grievous error. Mr. Kronold went out of that house by way of a basement door and thence to the street at the rear.

And now I come to the richest part of the joke—the money went with him. It had been in his pocket up to the moment when he stood by the table showing how the bag had lain. Then the clever rascal put it into the bag and snapped the lock and immediately entered upon the farce of the search of his own garments. The plunder was hidden in the very receptacle from which it had been stolen, and the thief so carried it from the scene of his remarkable crime. The stain upon the bag he made with his own wetted finger. These facts he confessed when he was caught upon an ocean steamer at the moment of her sailing on the following day.

Roadside Wit.

He who matched wits with the author of "The Ancient Mariner" had indeed a lively task before him, for Coleridge was never caught napping. The poet was so awkward a horseman that his riding often attracted comment of anything but a complimentary nature. One day he was riding along the turnpike road in the county of Durham when a wag who met him fastened upon him as an excellent subject for sport. Consequently he drew rein and said in an impertinent drawl:

"My graceful friend, did you happen to meet a tailor on the road?"

"I'm inclined to think I did," said Coleridge meditatively. "I was not sure at the moment, but he said something about my meeting a goose farther along the road."

The wag put spurs to his horse, and the poet jogged calmly on his way.

Unconscious Humor.

A class of little folk in an English elementary school were recently asked to define "a lady," with curious results. The definition of Lizzie, aged seven, will strike a responsive chord in the heart of the busy woman and shows that Lizzie must be an observing person. "A lady is something like a man," says Lizzie, "but she's got long hair and she's got a different face and different clothes, and she's got a lot of work to do." Charlie, aged six, is impressed by the difference between the sexes. "A lady" he finds to be "different from a man because a lady has different clothes from a man, a lady has different eyes from a man, a lady has a different body from a man, and a lady has different shoes from a man." Howard, aged seven, gets at the same facts from a different point of view. "A lady," he says, "has not got some trowsers, but a man has got some trowsers." A second Charlie, a year older than the first one, thinks that "a lady is a nice woman because she don't have torn clothes, and she has a woch with her, and she has a chane on the woch."

A Swelled Head.

A typical Englishwoman, when some one spoke the other day of a certain man having a "swelled head," looked dazed. "Really! You don't mean it!" cried the Englishwoman. "I'm very sorry." A day or so later the Englishwoman, happening to meet the wife of the man in question, observed that she was so sorry to hear that Mr. Blank was ill.

"But he isn't!" cried the wife. "He was never better in his life."

"Is that so?" said the Englishwoman. "Why, what could Mrs. Dash have meant the other day when she said he was suffering from a swelled head?"

His Narrow Escape.

A jolly old steamboat captain with more girth than height was asked if he had ever had any very narrow escapes.

"Yes," he replied, his eyes twinkling, "once I fell off my boat at the mouth of Bear creek, and, although I'm an expert swimmer, I guess I'd be there now if it hadn't been for my crew. You see, the water was just deep enough so's to be over my head when I tried to wade out, and just shallow enough"—he gave his body an explanatory pat—"so that whenever I tried to swim out I dragged bottom."—Everybody's.

Horrible Example.

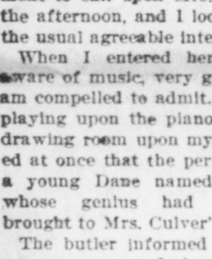
"My dear," said Mrs. Strongmind, "I want you to accompany me to the town hall tomorrow evening."

"What for?" queried the meek and lowly other half of the combine.

"I am to lecture on the 'Dark Side of Married Life,'" explained Mrs. S., "and I want you to sit on the platform and pose as one of the illustrations."—Chicago News.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.



Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. Kodol will make your food do you good and will enable you to enjoy what you eat. Sold by Green's Pharmacy.

There are a great many people who have slight attacks of indigestion and dyspepsia nearly all the time. Their food may satisfy the appetite but it fails to narish the body simply because the stomach is not in fit condition to do the work it is supposed to do. It can't digest the food you eat. The stomach should be given help. You ought take something that will do the work your stomach can't do. Kodol For Indigestion and Dyspepsia, a combination of natural digestants and vegetable acids, digests the food itself and gives strength and health to the stomach. Pleasant to take. A LIQUID COLD CURE
AND
LAXATIVE COUGH SYRUP

THE NEW IDEA

THE ORIGINAL

The Red Clover Blossom and the Honey Bee on Every Bottle.

"A Cold or a Cough nearly always produces constipation—the water all runs to the eyes, nose and throat instead of passing out of the system through the liver and kidneys. For the want of moisture the bowels become dry and hard." Nearly all other cough cures are constipating, especially those containing Opiates. Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar moves the bowels, contains no Opiates.

KENNEDY'S LAXATIVE
CONTAINING
HONEY AND TAR

Relieves Colds by working them out of the system through a copious action of the bowels.

Relieves Coughs by cleansing and strengthening the mucous membranes of the throat, chest, lungs and bronchial tubes.

For Croup, Whooping Cough, La Grippe, Influenza, Bronchitis, and all Coughs, Colds, Lung and Bronchial affections no remedy is equal to Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar. Children like it.

Nature has just one pigment on her pallette with which she produces all the marvelous tints of beauty, and that one pigment is the blood. The shell-like pink beneath the finger nails, the delicate rose of the cheek, cherry ripeness of the lips, the irridescent brilliance of the eyes are all produced by the blood. Just as the permanence of a beautiful painting will depend upon the purity of the colors with which it is painted, so the permanence of beauty depends on the purity of the blood. Paint, powder and cosmetics won't avail to observe beauty. Beauty begins in the blood. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a true beautifier, because it provides for nature that pure blood with which alone she can paint. The use of this medicine will cleanse the skin, heighten the complexion, brighten the eyes, and give to face and form that radiance of health which is the greatest charm of beauty.

This is not a "patent medicine" because every bottle bears upon its wrapper a full list of the ingredients. Send for free booklet to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Additional Locals.

—Many a man who walks briskly down the streets in the mornings is feeling his oats—"rolled oats."

—The picnic season is on the windup, and the the bugs and worms will have to begin to look out for themselves.

—Every day new students are coming to the Bellefonte Academy and without a doubt this will be the largest crowd of new fellows at this institution.

—The great big tree that stood in front of the Methodist church so many years has been cut down. It was an old mark and was planted there a great many years ago.

—The engagement of Miss Augusta Merriman of Bellefonte and J. Andrew Beaver of New York City, has been announced. The wedding will occur sometime this fall.

—We read the other day of a girl who danced herself to death. If she had been washing dishes, or helping her poor old mother do the washing or ironing, she would still be living.

—It don't look right to see a cop dodging in and out of a beer saloon a dozen or more times a day. They are supposed to be sober and stay away from such places only when called there in case of trouble.

—Jim Murray was arrested on Monday evening for shooting a dipper duck. It seems as though there was no law against shooting these fish eaters, and Jim should look into this matter and see whether or not he should have been arrested.

—Though he is out and around as usual and looks the picture of robust manhood George Mallory has not been in the best of health for some time hence has engaged a man from Altoona to run his blacksmith shop while he takes a much needed rest.

—The lunch room at the Altoona high school which is conducted by the Y. M. C. A., is proving quite a convenience to pupils, about 500 batronizing it daily. Hot soups, sandwitches, coffee, cocoa, and milk can be secured at a reasonable price.

—While walking toward the Central Station this morning we noticed written in large red letters the words "Where Will You Spend Eternity." It struck us rather forcibly and no doubt many others will read it as they pass by and think over the question seriously.

—Some time ago we stated that Dr. J. H. Orbinson had gone to Philadelphia, to preach, since then we have learned that he and his family are located in Germantown while Dr. Orbinson is attending lectures at the University of Pennsylvania Medical School before going back to India.

—Charley Kurtz is dickering for a Stanley Steamer, one of those great large one. When Charley gets this dandy automobile we know he will call around occasionally and give us a ride. Some day our ship will come in and we will get a Stanley for we believe they are the best on the market.

—According to the State Master William F. Hill, of Chambersburg, the bank movement among Grange members is advancing rapidly. Fourteen institutions have been organized in eighteen months, and work is now proceeding on six new buildings. The aggregate capital of Grange banks now in operation is about $1,000,000.

—Mrs. Jennie Silliman Roberts, of Hazelton, has issued invitations for the marriage of her daughter, Miss Ellen Silliman, to Thomas Hamilton Brew, the ceremony to take place in Saint Peter's church, Hazleton at six o'clock Wednesday evening, October 2nd. Immediately following the ceremony a reception will be held at the home of the bride's mother.

—We received a very interesting letter from Mr. J. W. Grubb who is now located at McKeesport. He says that work is very plentiful in that section of the state and that all the men are drawing large salaries. New mills are being erected that will employ many more men and that all the fellows around Bellefonte who have no work can find all they want by going out where he and his family are located.

—Col. Robert Westbrook of Altoona, has completed arrangements for the annual reunion of the survivors of the Forty-ninth regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers, which will be held at Huntingdon, Friday and Saturday, October 18th and 19th. The regiment was recruited throughout Centre, Blair, Huntingdon and Cambria counties and, of a total of 1,596 men who served in the regiment during the war less than three hundred now survive. The Forty-ninth was one of the most noted reiments of the rebellion, having participated in twenty-five hard fought battles, not counting skirmishes, among them being such bloody engagements as Antietam, Fredericksburg, Gettysburg, Cold Harber, Spottsylvania and Petersburg. Of the captains that served in the regiment during the war only three survive. They are Capt. J. D. Campbell, formerly of this county but now of Philadelphia; Capt. D. H. Sheeny, of West Chester, and Capt. James A. Quigley, of Blanchard. An effort will be made to have all three present at the forthcoming reunion.

—Mrs. Henry Sheldon entertained a number of ladies at the Bush House on Saturday evening.

—Jerry Condo is filling Bob Sechlers place in the baggage car on the L. & T. train. Jerry is a hustler and right there with the goods.

—On Sunday morning the 11 months old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Rolland Spicer's died. The little one was laid away on Tuesday afternoon.

—Edward Harper was taken home on Saturday from the hospital. He is almost well and looooks fine. Ed had a pretty serious time of it, but for some good reason his life was spared and we are glad of it.

—The large double parlors at the Humes home on corner of Howard and Allegheny streets are being beautifully papered with an imported English paper. It is one of the prettiest designs we have ever seen and when finished will make a great improvement to this already beautiful home.

—When you see Allen Marshall ride along the street in that big yellow wagon of Shrivery's, don't laugh at him because he is smiling for he can't help it. On Sunday evening that big stork left a little girl at his home, and Allen is tickled almost to death. Mrs. Marshall and the young lady are getting along nicely.

—If you want to see some pretty yards and flower beds take a walk out along Linn St. Everything looks so fresh and pretty and clean. The beautiful red flowers in front of Col. Spangler's home are also attracting a great deal of attention. Bellefonte has the prettiest homes and the best people of any town of its size in the State of Pennsylvania.

—Shorty Thompson was down on the race track at the Fair Grounds on Sunday afternoon with one of Lyons' automobiles and cleared a mile in 55 seconds. That is certainly going some and the fellow he had in the car with him was so badly scared that when he got out he shook. A mile in 55 seconds on a heavy track is certainly making the wheels go around.

—When the Centre and Clinton county commissioners together with Mr. Rhinedecker, a civil engineer, inspected the new Hubbard bridge near Beech Creek they found that the bridge does not rest perfectly on the abutments and in a few minor respects was not exactly in accordance with specifications, there being a suspicion that the abutments were not perfectly reliable. The bridge was built by the Owego Bridge company, of Owego, N. Y., and that company as well as the contractors who built the abutments have been notified of the apparent defects.

—John Olewine and a bunch of fellows visited Frank Clemson's home at Scotia on Sunday. They concluded to come home by the way of State College and when they got over in the Barrens they didn't know head nor tail to the road and for three hours they circled around in that lonely country, the automobile wading in sand almost up to the hubbs, at last they landed at George Thompsons lumber Camp at Alto. It was an experience that will long be remembered by the whole crowd of gentlemen and we'll bet dollars to onions Mr. Olewine will never take another automobile through this sandy, rocky peice of country.

Reception at Jacob Stein's.

The beautiful country home of Jacob Stein's near Zion was the scene of a delightful musical and reception last week. Miss Stein who is an accomplished musician and has a large class of students gave the musical and it certainly was a delightful affair. In her class of young ladies and gentlemen who are taking lessons are Misses Mary Gross, Della Yarnell, Pearl Garbrick, Nettie Stein, Lelia Robb, Nellie Stein, Alma Stein and Phil Robb. These young folks all took part in the entertainment and acquited themselves in an admirable manner. Among the guests present we noticed General B. F. Fisher, of Philadelphia, who has been a guest the past week at the lovely home of Dr. Philip Fisher at Zion and who is now visiting his old friends over at Boalsburg. The other guests present were, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Garbrick, Dr. Philip Fisher and wife, Mrs Isiah Struble, Howard Strouble and Miss May Strouble, Mrs. Nelson Robb, Miss Emma Lucas, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Noll, Mr. and Mrs. William Gross, Mr. Geo. Yarnell, Mr. and Mrs. Joel Royer and Miss Stover.

Two wills that hold the record for brevity have been recorded in Lancaster county. The one was that of John A. Kuntz, which read: "Leave all to my wife."

The will of Archibald F. Bonine, probated Monday, was almost equally as brief. It said: "Everything goes to my wife, Katie."

Comrade T. P. Ryder repeated a beautiful poem written by his good wife and by request of the association we publish the same.

SACRED SHRINES.

On the hill-tops how they are clustered,
In the valley ranged side by side,
And they tell a tale
From hill and vale
Of a nation's need and pride.

Flags float and flowers are scattered,
While the beating of drums once more
Recalls the long years
Of bloodshed and tears.
Oh! the pitiless fortunes of war.

Hearts wrung to the point of breaking;
Sleep fleeing the hours of night,
As with sick'ning fear
For loved ones dear
Women pray until morning light.

Youth flinging its hopes on the altar,
Lovers waving a last farewell,
And now but a grave
For the true and brave,
And the moan of a funeral knell.

But a grave? May we be forgiven
If blinded by bitter tears
We fail now to see
How for you and me
Rich blessing have followed the years.

How God, gathering up from his altars,
Each sacrifice sacred and pure,
Gives back to our land
From His bounteous hand,
The good that alone can endure.

How he lifts us up as a people
And gives us to lead the way
In defense of the right
'Gainst tyrannous might,
Toward the dawn of a cloudless day.

If now we stand first among nations,
If we point to our flag with pride,
'Tis because, fearing naught
These brave men fought,
And suffered, and bled, and died.

Then cover their graves with flowers,
And tell it again and again
Of these Boys of the Blue,
That the world never knew
Braver soldiers or manlier men.

The meeting then adjourned and the soldier boys left for their homes, hoping to meet each one again next year at Bellefonte.

Why can't Centre County appropriate any more money to the old Soldier?

Because the District Attorneys office got gay with the people's money.

Why are our taxes so high that the Farmer can hardlypay them?

Because our criminal Courts have put to shame the thieves at Harrisburg.

GAME WILL BE QUITE PLENTIFUL.

Sportsmen Preparing for the Season Soon to Open.

The sportsmen throughout Pennsylvania are beginning to realize that it is scarcely a month till the hunting season for most of our game birds will commence, while the rabbit will be safe from legal molestation for only six weeks yet. The sporting goods dealers are getting ready to meet the demands of the next few months in their line, which will begin in a couple of weeks in all probability in anticipation of the opening day. During the recent sessions of the legislature the laws passed were very favorable, on the whole, to the nimrods of the state and as a consequence the season this year will be longer than in recent years. At the same time the protection afforded deer to supposed to be much more stringent, from the fact that only deer with horns can be legally shot, but it will take an expert hunter, with remarkable eyes and much nerve to shoot at a deer with the certain knowledge that the deer is a buck with horns. And in case a shot at a supposed buck really kills a doe, the hunter can not make use of the slaughtered deer, for the law will fine him for doing so. With the 1st of October the woods will be filled with nimrods in quest of pheasants, woodcock, squirrels and turkeys, while with the 15th, of October rabbits come in and on the 1st of November the quail will be lawful game. Only from the 15th, of November, to the 1st, of December can deer be killed.

"Our reports show that game will be more plentiful in Pennsylvania this year than it has been for many years," said Dr. Joseph Kalbfus, secretary of the state game commission, Wednesday after compiling the latest reports from his deputies.

Dr. Kalbfus also said that there was more quails now than there has been at any time in the past five years, and that the quail imported by the commission from the southern states are thriving and increasing rapidly.

Rabbits are so plentiful as to become a nuisance in many localities; there is an abundance of pheasants and more deer, than has been known for years. One of the reasons for the abundance of game is the protection given quail and pheasants, especialty by the people of the rural districts, during the winter.

Dr. Kalbfus also said that the revised edition of the game and fish laws of Pennsylvania would be ready for general distribution by this week.

Big Centre County Fair.

In just three weeks from last Tuesday the big Centre county fair will open on the Centre County Agriculture Exhibiting company's grounds north of town and if indications count for anything we can promise you that this year's fair will be the bonanza of any yet held in Centre county.

For some time past workmen have been engaged putting the buildings and grounds in proper shape and when the time comes every thing will be ready for the biggest gathering, the largest line of exhibits, the best horse races and the most varied program of amusements that will be seen at any county fair in Central Pennsylvania this season; and this without detracting one iota from the greatness of the others.

Already many requests have been received from farmers and others throughout the county for space in the exhibition building and at the rate the applications are coming in the department will be crowded. The awards of prizes this year for best exhibits will be from one half to double as much as they have been in the past. This increase runs through the entire list of exhibits, from the best stock exhibits down to fruit and fancy work, so that it will be worth the farmers while to bring in his products and his handiwork.

There also promises to be a big display of poultry, fowls raised in Centre county which will be worth the price of admission to see. Quite a number of implement manufacturers and dealers will have their wares on the ground, a department in itself which will be of unusual interest to the farmers.

As is usually the case the racing will be the big feature Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons. Though it is yet too early to predict the number of horses that will be entered, there is every assurance that the string will be a good one. The time and the purses both are inducements to draw horse owners to the Centre county fair.

As to other amusements, there will be plenty of them, and of the kind that any minister or church member in the county need have no hesitation in taking his family to see. No gambling devices of any kind will be allowed on the grounds or within the jurisdiction of the management; not even the innocent paddle wheel, so that no one need feel afraid of being buncoed.

In conclusion we want to say that if you want to be with the majority you get in line now and have everything ready for the big week. Your neighbors are all going to be there and you don't want to stay at home alone. Remember the dates, October 8th, 9th, 10th and 11th.

The groom is well known in Lock Haven and has been for several years collector for the Empire steam laundry of that city.

Following a dinner, which was given immediately after the ceremony, the bridal couple left on a trip to Garrett, Indiana, where they will remain several days before they return to Lock Haven where the groom will look after a business proposition which he holds under advisement.

MAYOR OF SUNBURY
Says Pe-ru-na Is a Good Medicine.

Hon. C. C. Brooks, Mayor of Sunbury, Ohio, also Attorney for Farmers' Bank and Sunbury Building and Loan Co., writes:

"I have the utmost confidence in the virtue of Peruna. It is a great medicine. I have used it and I have known many of my friends who have obtained beneficial results from its use. I cannot praise Peruna too highly."

HON. C. C. BROOKS.

THERE are a host of petty ailments which are the direct result of the weather.

This is more true of the excessive heat of summer and the intense cold of winter, but is partly true of all seasons of the year.

Whether it be a cold or a cough, catarrh of the head or bowel complaint, whether the liver be affected or the kidneys, the cause is very liable to be the same.

The weather slightly deranges the mucous membranes of the organs and the result is some functional disease.

Peruna has become a standby in thousands of homes for minor ailments of this sort.

Sunday School Workers to Meet in Uniontown October 9-11.

The Pennsylvania State Sabbath School Association, with headquarters in the city of Philadelphia, is one of the greatest, if not the greatest organization of Christian workers in the State. Its annual conventions bring together a large number of delegates than any other religious organization. With auxiliary associations in all of the sixty-seven counties and these subdivided into district associations, it has a system of organization that carries its benefits to every local school no matter where it is located.

Pennsylvania is the largest Sunday School State in Union. Within the boarders of the State are eleven thousand and sixty-five schools enrolling 1,682,497 members, nearly one-fourth of the population. This vast organization will hold its Forty-third Annual Convention in the city of Uniontown, Fayette county, October 9, 10 and 11, 1907.

The Centre County Association is entitled to 25 delegates. Credential cards entitling holders to reduced rates on all railroads and special entertainment rates at Uniontown can be secured from Rev. W. H. Schuyler of Centre Hall, the County Corresponding Secretary or from W. G. Landes, General Secretary, Witherspoon Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa.

A Bold Hold-up.

On Thursday evening young Bolig, the Western Union Telegraph operator was standing up on East High street talking to several young lady friends, when three or four other fellows walked up behind him, caught him by the arms and handcuffed him. They then took him out beyond the cemetery and tied him to a tree. Hands and feet. He remained in that position until a policoman was called by one of the young ladies who untied him and set him free. Bolig knew the fellows and so do we, they have been causing a good bit of disturbance in Bellefonte of late, only last July the same gang come near being arrested for throwing dynamite torpedoes into the Y. M. C. A. during the rehearsals of the Coming of Ruth and later on got into trouble at Hecla Park. Now it is pretty nearly time to crawl down off the high horse or the boys who think they are so smart might take a trip to Huntingdon. Bolig is not going to push the case but if he did some one would get "stung."

Young Couple Married.

Miss Mary M. C. Tonery, daughter of Mrs. Mary Tonery, of Lock Haven, and Paul F. Neff of Tyrone were married at 8 30 Wednesday evening in the rectory of the Church of the Immaculate conception by Rev. Father J. N. Cordori. The ceremony was performed in the midst of a few relatives and friends, after which there was a reception at the home of the bride on East Main street.

The happy couple left Thursday morning for a wedding trip and will temporarily reside at Snow Shoe, where the groom is employed at present, but expects to move to Lock Haven later.

The bride is a pretty and charming young lady. She was for several years collector of the Commercial Telephone company in Lock Haven, but lately held the position of book-keeper for the Union Pacific Tea company. The groom was formerly employed as a brakeman on the Bald Eagle Valley railroad, but is at present located in Snow Shoe.

The happy couple have the congratulations of a host of friends who wish them much happiness in their wedded life.—Express.

Milesburg Done Up Again.

On Saturday a bunch of Bellefonte fellows went to Milesburg and in a five inning game put the bumps to the boys down the way. The game was played at the "Grave Yard Park," but my oh my it was some thing fierce, you might as well try and play ball on half Moon Hill as at this place, it is certainly on the train. But both teams put up a right smart game regardless of the condition of the field.

The Bellefonte boys had a new man playing with them, one of the new students at the Academy, "Reddy" Smith was the lads name and he certainly was a cracker jack. He is a good pitcher and a splendid batter. Once he nailed a three bagger. Sam Baird of the Milesburg team sent one away over into the old canal and got second, and "Dr. Moxie" Hugg made a pretty three base hit. Those were the three feature plays of the game, outside of Klines exceptionally good pitching. "Essic" has been playing foot ball lately and got his right shoulder on the bum and that hindered him throwing his old time puzzlers. He will be in good shape again in a few days, and will be ready to play the return with Milesburg on Meadowbrook Park which will take place some day next week. Toward the last of the game at Milesburg, turned into sort of a slugging match, but our fellows couldn't help it they just had to go in and bear it.

The line-up:

Girl Drugged, Burned with Acid, Left to Die.

Mary McAnnally, 15 years old, was drugged, taken to a dense wood three miles east of Altoona on Monday, by an unidentified man, where carbolic acid was forced down her throat and she was left to die.

After lying in the open all night she was discovered almost dead, and taken to her home in Altoona, where she is in a critical condition, threatening with pneumonia.

Her lips, the roof of her mouth and throat and her breast are badly burned by the acid. When found she was drenched to the skin by a rain that continued all night. If she survives she will be disfigured for life.

The girl is a daughter of James McAnnally, formerly a hotel proprietor at Bellwood, who died last April leaving her an estate of $8,000. She went to Altoona recently to go to school, living with her aunt.

Mother's Awful Crime.

Mrs. Catherine Thomas, wife of a miner employed at Spangler, it is alleged strangled her two daughters, aged 1 and 3 years respectively, while sleeping with them at the county home near Edensburg Friday.

The woman arose in the morning, ate a hearty breakfast and seemed in her usual frame of mind. Later she carelessly mentioned it to another inmate, and investigation proved that her story was entirely correct. It is believed that she also intended to kill her two sons, who were at the home, but was unable to induce them to come to her room, where the youngest child was killed.

Mrs. Thomas and her husband were both committed to jail last week on charges of drunkenness and disorderly conduct and the woman was released only a day or two before. She does not deny the crime but declared to the officials that it can't be proved against her. She was locked up, and after a coroner's jury had placed the responsibility upon her a charge of murder was preferred.

Mothers with little children need no longer fear croup, colds or whooping cough. Bees Laxative Cough Syrup tastes good. It works off the cold through the bowels, cuts the phlegm, clears the head. For young and old. Guaranteed. Secure a bottle at once. Sold by Krumrines Drug Store.

THE OLD FASHIONED CORN ROAST.

held by the Epworth League at the William Carson Home.

Just about one hundred young and old folks attended the Corn Roast at the beautiful Country home of William Carson on Thursday evening.

Promptly at 7:30 three large wagons and two carriages and several buggies conveyed the party to the Carson home which is located about two miles east of town on the Curtin—Reynolds farm.

The wagon we traveled in was drawn by Milton Johnson's spirited horses, the bed of the wagon was filled with straw, but before the young folks had traveled a mile every bit of it was thrown around over one another until they all looked like straw piles. When we reached the Carson home we were cordially welcomed by this kind hearted tiller of the soil and his good wife. The yard was brilliantly lighted up with lanterns and already the big fire had been started in the orchard that was to roast the corn. Large iron kettles filled with water were also strung along on long poles in order to boil corn for those who did not care to roast any.

It certainly was a funny sight to see all these folks away out in this field with the Parson in the centre of the bunch dishing out the hot corn with a long fork to each and everyone. Hot, well I guess it was hot, some of the girls used their handkerchiefs so as not to burn their fingers, of course they were the ones that had to eat it. Davy Stuart was chewing away at his ear of corn and Grace Blackford was sitting so close by that Davy got a hold of her ear thinking it was another ear of corn and began chewing to beat the band. You know Davy is near sighted and he couldn't help it. After everyone had gotten their fill of corn they went into the house, and for over two hours games of all kinds were played. The organ was brought into good use as a great many of the young ladies and gentlemen could play and sing.

In the house large tables were spread and everything imaginable was there to eat, and coffee, that was coffee with rich cream, to drink, well, we thought everybody had filled up on corn, but the way these other good things disappeared was wonderful.

The evening was certainly enjoyed by everyone present, that is all but two and they didn't seem to want to mingle with the rest. Of course when a girl has a sweetheart she's got to hang on to him these days for it is dangerous to let him run loose. But we don't think any one wanted to steal either one of the two, who hung out alone. With hearty thanks and best wishes the party left for their homes singing, "Merrily we roll along," and thus ended one of the most enjoyable evenings we ever had.

NOTES.

Miss Meyers one of the accomplished young nurses at the hospital says she sang so loud she lost her voice. If any one in the crowd finds it kindly take it to the hospital for treatment.

Miss Waite lost everything but her collar, no wonder, Miss Meyer who weighs something less than 300 was sitting on her all the time. Its a wonder Emma wasn't smashed. Glad we were at the other end of the wagon.

Miss Robb certainly had a delightful ride from the orchard to the house in Mr. Troutman's spring wagon. They said they were taking their wedding tour. Excuse us.

Davy Stuart has the greatest take in for any one man we ever saw, and sing you should hear him sing, he sings like "The bird on Nellies Hat."

The two girls that stole the horse and buggy and drove so fast to town come near having to pay for the beast. The animal took sick afterwards from being overheated.

Sid Keefer certainly likes boiled corn some one said he put away something less than a dozen.

Harvest Home Services.

Harvest Home Services were held Sunday morning in St. Johns Reformed church and in the Zion Reformed church at 2:30 p. m. The decorations in St. John's church were unusually fine, the entire front of the church was a mass of flowers, fruits and vegetables. Corn wheat and oats in the shock were used in decorating. Rev. Schmidt preached an exceptionally forceful sermon on the significance and true spirit of a Harvest Home Service. Miss Bible of Philadelphia sang two very sweet solos; her voice being remarkably sympathetic

The offerings were for "the Society for the Relief of Ministers" and amounted to $20.50.

At Zion the church was beautifully adorned with fruits, vegetables and flowers. The entire service was full of the spirit of thankfulness and the offerings amounted to $10.50 being devoted to the Ministerial Relief fund.

At both places the congregations were large and the congregational singing was fine. The vegetables, fruits and flowers from St. John's church were sent to the Bellefonte Hospital.

WALTER WELLMAN.

UNDETERRED by the mysterious fate of Andree, who left Dane's island, Spitzbergen, in a balloon on July 11, 1897, with two companions and has never been heard from since Walter Wellman a newspaper correspondent, has spent many weary months and many thousands of dollars of the Chicago Record-Herald's money in preparation for a second quest of the north pole by airship. Three men and twelve dogs will share the perils of the expedition, and the spot chosen for the start is the very spot where Andree and his companions waved their farewell. Wellman's airship, the America, carries gasoline sufficient to run its three motors until the craft has covered 2,700 sea miles, or more than twice the round trip distance between Spitzbergen and the coveted pole. The America is 183 feet long, 65 feet high and 52.5 feet wide and is one of the largest, strongest and most expensive dirigible balloons ever built. Its total weight when fully equipped with men and supplies is 22,840 pounds, and from it will hang a leather "sausage" guide rope 130 feet long packed with over 1,000 pounds of bacon, ham, bread and butter. This odd contrivance, which will trail along over the ice floes, was devised to check the speed of the airship and at the same time furnish an additional supply of food. In case Wellman and his party are stranded near the pole because of disaster to their airship they will push on toward their goal with a complete sledging outfit drawn by Siberian dogs or make a dash for civilization. The Spitzbergen group of islands is 504 miles northeast of Norway and is owned by Russia.

THE MAMMOTH BALLOON HOUSE OF THE AMERICA.

Dr. W. H. Wiley, the government chemist, and former Senator Thurston of Nebraska went out to the Columbia Golf club to play golf. Wiley started off gayly from the first tee. He topped his drive, and the ball rolled into the bunker. Wiley began beating the ball with a niblick. He couldn't get it out. At the fifteenth stroke his caddy lighted a cigarette, sat down on the grass and said, "Well, anyway, it is a fine day."

Governor Edwin Warfield of Maryland is credited with a distinct ambition to go to the United States senate. Should that ambition be achieved during the present administration there will be at each end of Pennsylvania avenue one of the best horsemen in the country. President Roosevelt's horsemanship is well known. Governor Warfield, who has passed much of his life on the farm in connection with his great estate of 800 acres, is so proud of his ability to sit a lively steed that once when a Baltimore newspaper stated that the Hon. Edwin Warfield had been thrown from his horse he called up the editor by telephone at once and said:

EDWIN WARFIELD.

"That was Edwin Warfield, Jr., who was thrown from his horse, if you please. The horse does not live that can throw Edwin Warfield, Sr."

Governor Warfield belongs to one of the oldest of Maryland families. The family fortune was impaired during the civil war and the reconstruction period, and the future governor was compelled to look out for himself to a considerable extent. He was a store clerk, a country schoolteacher and the editor of a paper in a small town. Later he became a resident of Baltimore, got into the banking business and became a man of wealth. His fine estate he farms thoroughly, employing many negroes.

Governor Warfield once remarked at a high school commencement that in his opinion girls should not marry until they reached the age of twenty-six. He was severely censured for trying to create a race of spinsters, but the governor valiantly stuck to his thesis and argued against early marriages for either men or women.

Representative Morris Sheppard of Texas was declaiming one day in the house against the distribution of seeds by the government. He contended that it is a useless, wasteful and altogether deplorable practice.

"Why," said Representative Sheppard, "the people do not care for the seeds. I sent some to a constituent last year. A time ago I received a letter which said the man had the seeds I had sent him and didn't want any more. 'Instead,' he wrote, 'if you really want to do something for me I wish you would send me a suit of this newfangled union underwear.'"

Among white children the Teddy bear doll is a thing of quite recent date, but there is a tribe of American Indian children to whom the bear dolly, though of course not exactly the Teddy kind, is very ancient. These are the children of the Mokis, in north central Arizona. The Moki Indians form one of the most interesting tribes we have. They have rites and ceremonies dating back, no doubt, to prehistoric times.

At the several annual dances and ceremonial affairs of these Indians some of the men appear in strange and fantastic costumes. Each costume represents some mystic idea. One man, for instance, comes out dressed as a bear. Another is in a wolf's garb. These are the bear god and the wolf god. The latter is one of the deities of war. The bear god also serves some mysterious purpose in the primitive belief of these people.

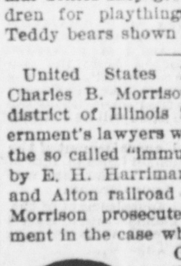
There are little bears and wolves and other animals of miniature size carved out of the roots of the cottonwood tree. This tree has a sacred character because it grows near water, the scarcest and most precious article in that sun parched country. When the big folks get through with the animal dollies they give them to the children for playthings; hence the pre-Teddy bears shown in the picture.

United States District Attorney Charles B. Morrison of the northern district of Illinois is one of the government's lawyers who are concerned in the so called "immunity bath" enjoyed by E. H. Harriman and the Chicago and Alton railroad officials. Attorney Morrison prosecuted for the government in the case wherein the Standard Oil company was fined $29,240,000 for accepting rebates from the Chicago and Alton. The officials of that road turned state's evidence, it being understood that in consideration of such assistance the road would not be prosecuted.



CHARLES B. MORRISON.

District Attorney Morrison has had much experience in government service as a prosecutor. He was chosen to conduct the famous beef trust inquiry of two years ago, a distinction earned by long service as district attorney, to which office he was appointed in 1898.

Mr. Morrison has resided in Illinois from early boyhood. He is an easterner by birth. In 1878 he was graduated from the Union College of Law in Chicago and began practice at Dixon, Ill. He served two terms as state attorney for Lee county.

The lawyer who has been selected to be Harry K. Thaw's chief counsel in the next trial of Stanford White's slayer is Martin W. Littleton of Brooklyn. Mr. Littleton is only thirty-five years old and possesses enthusiasm enough to supply several average men. His career is one that is possible only in America.

Born in Tennessee, Littleton was taken to Texas in early boyhood. There he grew up without schooling, save for a seven months' term. He worked as a farm hand and later as a railroad track man. He read and studied in his leisure time to such an extent that he was admitted to the bar before he was twenty-one.

MARTIN W. LITTLETON.

Texas, though the biggest state in the Union, apparently was not large enough to satisfy the vaulting ambition of young Littleton. He removed to Brooklyn shortly after beginning law practice. He got into politics, being a Democrat, and soon was making stump speeches throughout the state.

This placed him in line for office, and in 1903, at the age of thirty-one, Mr. Littleton was elected president of the borough of Brooklyn for the term of two years. At the Democratic national convention in St. Louis in 1904 Mr. Littleton was selected to place Judge Alton B. Parker in nomination. Some time after the election Littleton was introduced to President Roosevelt in this fashion:

"Mr. President, permit me to introduce the man who elected you."

"Indeed," said the president. "And how was that?"

"He nominated Parker."

The Hanging of Pictures.

A woman bought three pictures in a Fifth avenue art store.

"Shall I send some one up to hang them?" asked the dealer.

"I—I don't know," hesitated the woman, who had already exceeded her allowance in buying the pictures. "How much extra will it cost?"

"Not a cent," the dealer assured her. "In the case of any important sale we prefer that one of our men superintend the hanging of the picture. That insures justice for the painting. Without meaning any disrespect for our customers, I must say that not one person in a hundred who has had no special instruction in art can take a picture home and place it in an advantageous position. A man who has been trained to that business, on the other hand, can tell at a glance where to hang it and all the others in the room so that each will bring out the best points of all the rest."—New York Sun.

WHATEVER IS IS RIGHT.

KNOW thy own point: This kind, this due degree
Of blindness, weakness, heaven bestows on thee.
Submit: In this or any other sphere
Secure to be as blest as thou canst bear,
Safe in the hand of one disposing power,
Or in the natal or the mortal hour.
All nature is but art unknown to thee;
All chance, direction which thou canst not see;
All discord, harmony not understood;
All partial evil, universal good:
And, spite of pride, in erring reason's spite,
One truth is clear—whatever is is right.

THE WAY TO SHADOWTOWN.

SWAY to and fro in the twilight gray;
This is the ferry for Shadowtown.
It sails away at the end of the day
Just as the darkness closes round.

REST, little hand, on my shoulder—so;
A sleepy kiss is the only fare.
Drifting away from the world we go—
Baby and I in the rocking chair.

SEE, where the firelogs glow and spark,
Glitter the lights of Shadowland.
The raining drops on the window—hark,
Are ripples lapping upon its strand.

THERE where a mirror is glancing dim
A lake lies shimmering, cool and still;
Blossoms are wavering o'er its brim—
Those over there on the window sill.

ROCK slow, more slow, in the dusky light.
Silently lower the anchor down.
Dear little passenger say "Good night."
We've reached the harbor of Shadowtown.
—Eugene Field.

THE RULER OF THE QUEEN'S NAVEE.

WHEN I was a lad I served a term
As office boy to an attorney's firm.
I cleaned the windows and swept the floor,
And I polished up the handle of the big front door.
I polished up the handle so care-fu-lee
That now I am the ruler of the queen's na-vee.

As office boy I made such a mark
That they gave me the post of junior clerk.
I served the writs with a smile so bland,
And I copied all the letters in a big round hand.
I copied all the letters in a hand so free,
And now I am the ruler of the queen's na-vee.

In serving writs I made such a name
That an articled clerk I soon became.
I wore clean collars and a brand new suit
For the pass examination at the institute.
And that pass examination did so well for me
That now I am the ruler of the queen's na-vee.

Of legal knowledge I acquired such a grip
That they took me into the partnership.
And that junior partnership, I ween,
Was the only ship that I ever had seen,
But that kind of ship so suited me
That now I am the ruler of the queen's na-vee.

I grew so rich that I was sent
By a pocket borough into parliament.
I always voted at my party's call,
And I never thought of thinking for myself at all.
I thought so little they rewarded me
By making me the ruler of the queen's na-vee.

Now, landsmen all, whoever you may be,
If you want to rise to the top of the tree;
If your soul isn't fettered to an office stool,
Be careful to be guided by this golden rule—
Stick close to your desks and never go to sea,
And you may all be rulers of the queen's na-vee.
—William S. Gilbert.

HIGHLAND MARY.

YE banks and braes and streams around
The castle o' Montgomery,
Green be your woods and fair your flowers,
Your waters never drumlie!
There simmer first unfauld her robes
And there the langest tarry,
For there I took the last fareweel
O' my sweet Highland Mary.

How sweetly bloomed the gay green birk,
How rich the hawthorn's blossom,
As underneath their fragrant shade
I clasped her to my bosom!
The golden hours on angel wings
Flew o'er me and my dearie,
For dear to me as light and life
Was my sweet Highland Mary.

Wi' mony a vow and locked embrace,
Our parting was fu' tender,
And, pledging aft to meet again,
We tore oursels asunder,
But, oh, fell Death's untimely frost,
That nipped my flower sae early!
Now green's the sod and cauld's the clay
That wraps my Highland Mary!

Oh, pale, pale now those rosy lips
I aft ha'e kissed sae fondly,
And closed for aye the sparkling glance
That dwalt on me sae kindly,
And moldering now in silent dust
That heart that lo'ed me dearly,
But still within my bosom's core
Shall live my Highland Mary!
—Robert Burns.

TWO SHIPS.

TWO ships of war met on the sea,
And each had sailors brave and free.
And the sun on high was shining.

But it was plain they were enemies,
For a shot from each boomed on the breeze,
While the sun on high was shining.

They roared and charged and backed and swerved.
Each gave the other what he deserved.
And the sun on high was shining.

They shelled each other an hour or so,
And then they suddenly went below!
Yet the sun on high was shining!

And no one knew which ship had won!
And neither knew where the other had gone!
But the sun on high was shining.

Largest Loaf of Bread

At the annual meeting of the Indiana Baker's Association, the largest loaf of bread ever made was exhibited. It was over fourteen feet long. Something like 120 pounds of dough were required to it. To carry it from the bakery to the hall where it was exhibited, they had to put the loaf in a bread wagon, while the other end was supported by a buggy.—Selected.

The Renewal a Strain.

Vacation is over. Again the school bell rings at morning and at noon, again with tens of thousands the hardest kind of work has begun, the renewal of which is a mental and physical strain to all except the most rugged. The little girl that a few days ago had roses in her cheeks, and the little boy whose lips were then so red you whould have insisted that they had been "kissed by strawberries," have already lost something of the appearance of health. Now is a time when many children should be given a tonic which may avert much serious trouble, and we known of no other so highly to be recommended as Hood's Sarsaparilla, which strengthens the nerves, perfects digestion and assimilation, and aids mental develoment by building up the whole system.

THE WOMAN WHO COUGHED.

Catarrh had nearly ruined me. It had eaten away the partition in my nose; produced Asthma, Bronchitis, Rheumatism; ruined my stomach; in fact, gone all through my system. Then Grip finished me. I was a wreck; took cold at nothing; and coughed day and night. The doctors dosed me with opium and quinine. No good. Cough 'cures'? Bah! Then Brazilian Balm renovated me. Killed every germ. Took 10 $1.00 bottles. Now I'm like a girl of 18.

A WOMAN ASSAULTED

Overpowered at Home on Farm Near Linden

COULD NOT CRY OUT

Chocked so That She Could Not Cry out Mrs. Clarence Hartmaa Fought in Vain to free Herself From Her Assailant's Grasp

NERGO WAS SEEN AT LINDEN

The wife of Clarence Hartman' a farmer living about a mile east of Linden and a fourth of a mile off the main road was assaulted by a man supposed to be a negro, in her home during the forenoon on Wednesday. Mrs. Hartman, who is only 19 years old, was at home alone, her husband being at work on the public road above Linden. The man who committed the brutal assault, presumably a tramp, approached with a demand for something to eat. Mrs. Hartman was preparing him something to eat when the fellow, learning that she was alone, attacked her.

Savagely choking her the fellow prevented the woman from making an outcry. She struggled and in the encounter her face was badly scratched, but the man's greater strength over came her. Fearing to venture from the house to give the alarm, Mrs. Hartman waited for half an hour after her assailant left before she told anyone of her frightful experience The negro, as he is thought to be, was seen about 11 o'clock at a boathouse on the river near the home of Samuel Glosser, and is thought to have started down stream toward Newberry.

A negro answering to the description of the man who committed the assault on Tuesday evening called at the home of Samuel Glosser and asked for something to eat. He left when offered bread. He was also seen at the Linden hotel Wednesday morning, and George Hoffman saw him in the vicinity of Hartman home at a later hour.

The Williamsport police were asked to assist in an effort to capture Mrs. Hartman's assailant and reports of men supposed to fit the description of the fellow who is watched, being seen at various points, kept the officers investigating.

Constable John K. Hoover, of this city, Wednesday night returned from Linden, having spent the day at work on the case, on which he is yet engaged. He furnishes the following as a correct description of the man who is wanted.

He is about five feet eleven inches tall, cross-eyed, has a week's growth of beard, wears a dirty light hat and a soiled light coat. He appears to be about forty years old.

At an early hour this morning the fugitive negro had not been apprehended, but Chief Evans had completed the task of notifying by long distance 'phone many places in every direction, in order to make a determined effort to head off the brute who committed a crime that in this section is indeed rare —Williamsport Gazette.

Drill Program for the Twelfth Regiment.

Col. Charles M. Clement, commanding the Twelfth Infantry, has issued a general order specifying a program of drills for the companies of his regiment covering the drill nights from September 16 to January 28.

It states that non-commissioned officers failing to attend these drills or become proficient in the duties of their office will be reduced to the ranks.

Col. Clement directs attention to the fact that the regiment did not pass a satisfactory spring inspection last year and it is his intention that no effort should be spared to make the coming spring inspection a success, and every one will be held to a strict accountability for his part therein.

Members of the field and staff will be detailed to attend company drills and cooperate with the company commanders.

HOW TO SMILE.

Don't Smile at All Unless You Can Smile a Pretty, Open Smile.

Unless you can smile a beautiful smile there isn't much use of trying to push your way onward in this world of misery. If things come your way, all well and good. If they don't, you can't make them. A smile is necessary in most cases to right things. If you don't know how to smile or can't smile, you are badly off.

Here is the recipe for a smile:

One pair of red lips that turn upward at the corners, the redder the better, and the sharper the upward curve the prettier the lips will be. The lips should also be full and what is called ripe. If your lips are not "ripe" you must learn how to ripen them.

For your smile, which is to be a permanent one, always ready when wanted, you will need a set of dimples. One will answer if you have no more. But it should be located in the chin. A chin dimple makes all the difference in the world when one is counting up one's good looks; in a smile it is half the battle.

In your smile you really ought to have cheek dimples. But these are difficult unless your face is fat. Still they are not impossible even to the thin cheeked girl. Dimples are so delightful when you are smiling. They are cheerful and persuasive.

Dentistry at home seems impossible, yet there are certain preventives which may come under the head of dentistry. The teeth play a very important part in the smile—in fact, there can be said to be no smile at all unless the teeth are nice; otherwise the smile is a mere grimace. It should not be attempted.

The habit of holding the hand up in front of the lips when one smiles to hide a defect in the teeth is to be deplored. It makes the one who smiles look awkward, and it defeats itself in that it merely calls attention to the fact that the teeth are poor. Don't smile at all unless you can smile a pretty, open smile.

CORSET ADVICE.

Wear One Pair One Day and Another the Next.

If you change your dress in the evening, change the corsets with the dress. If not, wear one pair one day and another the next. They will last as long again and keep their shape. Then carefully roll them up, first straightening gently, but firmly, steels or bones that have become bent by the figure's swelling. Do not accustom yourself to leaving off your corsets when tired or hot in the evenings. Wear them looser if you like, and when you are really ill keep an old but well fitting pair, but resist the middle aged instinct to flop and uncorset yourself. It accounts for more shapeless, sack figures than one realizes. When putting on your corset pull it well down before beginning to lace it. Make sure that the waist is in its proper place and not riding up at least an inch, as is generally the case with a careless woman. The whole effect of a corset, no matter how good, is spoiled by this. A pretty, trim figure is by no means difficult to obtain. Nor are expensive corsets an absolute necessity. Inexpensive ones can do wonders, and if a woman's income is such that she can afford to have her stays made to order she is to be congratulated. But she need not despair over ready mades, and those costing less than $5 at that. It is a great mistake to think it is ever necessary to lace. It is always undesirable and always inartistic. More ruined digestions, more red noses, more weak hearts and often more agonies of pain around the heart have been caused by this than by anything else.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES.

If a narrow tape is run in the bottom of your kimono gowns in the sleeves they may be tied in a bow and kept out of the way when one is working about the house.

In making bands on children's underwear it is a good idea to allow an inch at each end to turn back before making the buttonhole, as this makes the band much stronger and there will be less tearing of garments.

A useful thing for mothers who have plenty of mending to do for small boys and girls is gum tissue. It can be placed under thin spots in elbows and knees, used to patch a rent in a hurry and gives a stiff background to revers or collars made of soft materials that have little stiffness of their own.

When blankets have become thin and unsightly from long use have them washed, put two or three together and cover them with pretty sateen to make quilts. Button down quilts here and there mattress fashion to keep them in proper shape and finish off with a nice sateen frill if desired. They are very nice.

Careful Boy.

Two American tourists on their way to Abbotsford were in doubt about the road to take and the time it would occupy to get there. Hailing a lad who happened to be passing, they put the necessary questions. The native replied by showing the route, but did not know how long it would take to get there. The tourists resumed their journey, but had scarcely gone a hundred yards when a shout from the boy made them turn.

"It will take you an hour," called the boy at the pitch of his voice.

"Then why the deuce didn't you tell us that before?" returned one of the Americans.

"I couldna tell ye afore I knew hoo fast ye could walk."—Dundee Advertiser.

Bascom and His Students.

John Bascom, once president of the University of Wisconsin, always had a keen insight into men, and for much of his life college students constituted mankind for him. Once when he was a class officer the names of two men were read by him as absent from morning prayers. One of them, a pietist, stopped at his desk and said:

"Professor, when the chapel bell was ringing I was engaged in prayer and did not hear it."

"You're not excused," responded John, with contempt in his eye and in his voice.

Then, calling back the other man, who was about at the door on his way out of the room, he said to him:

"What's your excuse?"

"I haven't any, sir."

"You're excused.'

He used to have debates in his classroom. At one of them a student, whom Bascom subsequently described as a "floriating fellow," in the heat of his eloquence said, "I wish that I had the ability and the time to exhaust this subject."

"You have the time," said Bascom.—Harper's Weekly.

Smart Boy Wins.

The visitor was examining the class of small boys. He held the chalk in midair.

"What number shall I draw on the board?" he asked of one boy.

The boy replied, "Thirty-two."

The visitor drew the number backward, which made twenty-three.

"Is that right?" asked the visitor.

"Yes, sir; yes, sir," answered the boy in a timid way.

"What number shall I take now?" he asked of another.

The boy answered, "Sixty-two," whereupon the visitor drew the number backward, as before—twenty-six.

"Is that right?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," replied the boy.

A long way back a bright eyed boy held up a wavering hand.

"What number shall I draw for you?" asked the visitor.

The boy called out, "Forty-four!" Then, when the visitor had drawn it, he yelled out, "Now, if you are so blamed smart, twist that around!"—New York Globe.

A Financial Embarrassment.

A lady who had a kindly remembrance for all her domestic servants met an erstwhile washerwoman and stopped to ask her how she fared.

"Oh, mem, it's turrible finanshul distress me an the childer's in!"

"Why, what is it? Are you out of employment?"

"No, mem. Work's in a fair state o' stiddiness and not a clut do I owe, but it's lashins o' trouble I've got!"

"Are you not paid promptly?"

"As promptly as the day cooms round."

"What is your financial distress, then?"

"Well, mem" (in a burst of horror), "what's killin' me is, I earn $6 the week an' pay $8 for me boord, an' God only knows how I do it!"—Short Stories.

So Many?

They went in to dinner together. He was very bashful, and she tried in vain to draw him out. Finally she began to talk books, and he became responsive. "And Hugo," she asked, "do you like his style?"

"Oh, yes," he replied, "I find him intensely interesting. I've read a number of his books."

Then she asked, "Have you read 'Ninety-Three?'"

"No, I've—er—only read three. I didn't know he had written so many."—Lippincott's Magazine.

As Japanese See It.

It is said the Japanese think our grown women most alarmingly overgrown, very shocking in their costume and quite dreadful as regards their teeth and their feet—in a word, outrageous. They consider the kimono preferable to western habiliments because it so completely obliterates the lines of the figure. They teach girls to talk with their lips almost closed, concealing the teeth, and to walk with the feet parallel in tiny steps or even toeing in.—Kansas City Journal.

The Latest Hour.

"What time is it, my lad?" asked a traveler of a small boy who was driving a couple of cows home from the fields."

"Almost 12 o'clock, sir," replied the boy.

"I thought it was more."

"It's never any more here," returned the lad, in surprise. "It just begins at 1 again."—Lustige Blatter.

And the Boy Was Right.

"If one quart of berries cost 7¼ cents, how much would three quarts cost?" asked a Brooklyn teacher in an oral test the other day.

"They would cost you 22 cents," promptly responded a little boy. "We have nothing less than 1 cent in our money, and the man would just make it 22 cents."—New York Press.

The Visible Signs.

"The Goits have been doing some mountain climbing in Switzerland."

"There! Guessed it the minute I set eyes on them the other day."

"How could you tell?"

"They had such a peaked look about them."—Baltimore American.

—One day last week Miss Mary Rapp, a seamstress, went into a closet and was somewhat startled to be confronted by a big rat. She at once procured a broom and went after the rodent. Since that a sore has broken out on her arm near the shoulder and one on her face and it is feared that a bad case of blood poison may result from the rat's bite.

BLOCK SIGNAL SYSTEM.

Put in Operation on Bald Eagle Valley Railroad Sunday.

At 12.01 Sunday morning the new block signal rules approved April 1 last were put into effect on the Bald Eagle Valley railroad, of the Tyrone division of the P. R. R. At the same time rules 201 to 216 of the book of rules, were annulled so far as they had applied to that portion of the division. New instructions were issued by Superintendent J. K. Johnson several days ago, to become effective with the new block system rules. Conductors, enginemen and signal men are required to have clear understanding with each other, and trains must be operated in strict conformance to the newly perfected system. The block system plan is adopted as an additional precaution, one that is regarded as providing safety as absolute as can be secured in the operation of railroad trains. To secure this highly desirable measure of safety, the system of operation must be somewhat more elaborate than the old method, which may result in a slower general movement, but it is never a mistake to let speed stand back for safety.

The block station on the main line of the Bald Eagle Valley road are located at Vail station; west end of the passing sidings at Bald Eagle, Hannah, Port Matilda, Martha, Julian and Unionville: east end of Snow Shoe Intersection passing siding; Milesburg station; west end of the passing sidings at Holters, Howard and Beech Creek; middle switches Mill Hall siding; Lock Haven telegraph office. New towers have been placed at the block station locations. There is a day and night operator at each station. Assistant Engineer J. W. Stone made the plans and had charge of the erection of the block stations, wherein Division Operator A. A. Witter installed the new wires.

The new system started off admirably. Trainmaster R. B. Freeman, who has had the arrangements for its installation largely in his charge, made the trip over the line Sunday, to Lock Haven and return, to observe the operation, and he was gratified with the success with which the system has been taken up. Plans are under way for installing the block signal system on the Bellefonte branch very shortly; and the new block stations for the Tyrone & Clearfield branch will be gun as soon as the equipment arrives. The entire division will soon have the system in operation. Trainmaiter Freeman, Division Operator Witter and Road Foreman of Engines C. N. Watt have been instructing the employees in the the details of the block system operation for some time.
